Experience, Not Sex, Determining Factor

Discrimination Charge Denied

By Barbara Ponsi

Less experience, not her sex, was the telling factor in the Jane L. Price hiring controversy, a statement, issued here Monday, contended.

The statement of objection, issued by Dr. Lois A. More, professor of history, who conducted preliminary hiring interviews for Asian studies teachers in 1970, counters Price's charges that she would be denied hope of advancement in a teaching position because she was a woman.

THIS STATEMENT, which constitutes a legal document placed on record to protect the right of appeal, comes in response to last week's recommendation by the NJ State Division on Civil Rights that MSC pay Price $17,243 in back pay and an additional $500 in damages "for mental pain, suffering and humiliation."

Price's complaint said she applied for the position of assistant professor in 1971 but was told she could only be hired at the lower rank of instructor with no possibility of promotion because she was a young woman.

More verified that Price was told she could possibly be hired as an instructor but denied making any mention of the applicant's sex. Price's lack of both teaching experience and a PhD did not qualify her for an assistant professorship, More said, and Dr. J. Kenneth Olenik, now assistant professor of history, was chosen for the position over Price because of his greater experience.

PRICE HAD applied for a job teaching Asian studies and was interviewed along with 12 others, including another woman. More and Dr. Richard Barker, history department chairman, interviewed both female and two male applicants here at MSC.

"I had the primary responsibility for the preliminary screening of candidates because I had also interviewed nine male applicants in Boston at the American Historical Association Convention," More said.

Both Price and Olenik had majors in modern Chinese history and had done dissertations on the subject, the statement said, but Olenik also had two 18-hour graduate minors in classical Chinese history and literature, along with two years of teaching experience, one in high school and one at Cornell University.

PRICE HAD taken several graduate courses as an undergraduate and only a six-hour introductory course in Asian civilization as a graduate. She had no previous teaching experience.

Another influential factor in the choice of Olenik over Price was the fact that the former had spent a year in Taiwan and a year in Japan while Price had never visited Asia.

MORE AND Barker considered these factors even though Olenik, as well as Price, hadn't received his PhD, although he was further along toward its completion than Price.

More stressed that her role was merely to make recommendations after the primary screening and that she had no authority to make a final decision on the rank or salary any applicant could be hired at.

"I'M HOPING that the college will appeal the hearing examiner's decision," More reflected. "The case would probably have to be appealed to secure an important change in the verdict," she added.

More added that she is undecided on whether or not to personally appeal the case because of legal expenses.

Dorm to Proceed Despite Suit

By Donald Scarinci

The 350-bed dormitory on Clove road is scheduled to open in September, 1976 despite the lawsuit against MSC by the town of Little Falls, according to Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning and budget.

Quinn said that the major cause of the town's suit is the landfill project. By pulling out of the project, he continued, the "suit would be resolved."

THE 10-ACRE site will be filled by 175 two-bedroom apartments.

According to Quinn, the cost per student is expected to be $780 plus electricity which would come to about $200 more per year.

Commenting on the suit against the college's project, Quinn noted that all the town's arguments have been met. He did say that "because we're placing a multiple dwelling in a residential town we are providing a five acre buffer area where the original trees and shrubs remain intact."

"It's true the town is losing a ratable, something that would raise money," Quinn continued, "but they're gaining all the advantages of having a college campus in their community."

BY FILING its suit Little Falls hopes to deprive the college of $71,500 a year in federal aid on the project. Quinn said that loss of this money would increase rents by about $200 a year but, he affirmed, "building construction will not be stopped."

Other monies from the project are coming from a 1971 NJ bond issue totalling $771,000 and from the students themselves in the form of rent.

Quinn said that there was "no indication these (state funds) would be removed." He noted that there is a legislative committee that guides and directs the use of the state money.

QUINN SAID the federal money coming into the college for the new dorm would be similar although less than the $130,000 that comes into the college for Bohn Hall. The money would come for 38 years, he said.

Quinn noted that most of the MSC campus is now in Little Falls. He said the residents of that community have use of most campus facilities "especially during the summer when there aren't that many students around."

The suit against the college filed in US district court on Aug. 8 claims that the college failed to refer to its proposed eight-acre sanitary landfill across Clove Road from the dormitory.

THE TOWNSHIP is complaining because the department of Housing and Urban Development did not take the adjoining landfill into account because the college "improperly failed" to advise them of the landfill operation.

Landfill Lawyers To Confer Today

By Janet Byrne

An attorney representing MSC and Jerry Finn, attorney for the Carrino Contracting and Trucking Co., Belleville, are scheduled to meet this afternoon, exactly one week after Lewis Carrino received a notice from President David W.D. Dickson cancelling his company's landfill contract with the college.

The meeting was arranged when Finn, whose client was charged by Dickson with breach of contract in the landfill operation, contacted the college this week by telephone.

ACCORDING TO the Sept. 8 Herald-News, "Jerry Finn, attorney for the landfill operators, said an official response to the college's cancellation of the project will be released today (Monday)."

Dickson said in a telephone interview Wednesday afternoon that he had received no such response.

Finn did phone the college, Dickson added, and ask to meet with the college's attorney, who is Sherry Gible, Deputy Attorney General for the state.

SINCE DICKSON ordered Carrino to "vacate the premises and remove all of (his) equipment forthwith," the filing of suits and making of charges has ricocheted to the township of Little Falls, which authorized an appeal of the approval given the landfill project by the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners (PUC), and back to Finn, who filed a suit against a township ordinance regulating land landfills in the municipality.

Finn has charged MSC with nothing. According to the Herald-News, Finn "added that legal action against the college could be avoided by discussions with college officials to eliminate 'any possible misunderstandings' with the contracting firm."

Presumably, Finn and Gible will discuss the violations of the contract today which, as cited by Dickson in the letter of cancellation, are:

- Failure to install a clay liner in the quarry, before depositing refuse, to prevent leachate, a water-polluting fluid, from contaminating underground waters;
- Failure to install a leachate collection system;
- Failure to comply with a local environmental ordinance;
- Failure to produce proof of insurance coverage;
- Failure to maintain a movable fence and a sign showing the site to be a landfill.

DORM IN THE MAKING: Work is proceeding on MSC's new student housing facility, due to be completed by September, 1976. A Little Falls suit recently tried to halt construction of the 350-bed dorm.

$: MSC Comes up Short

By Irene McKnight

Cutbacks of over $1.5 million from the 1975-1976 budget have resulted in "stealing from allocations for the spring budget," according to Dr. Irwin Gawley, vice-president of academic affairs.

Gawley explained that because of the premature use of funds that were allocated for the spring semester, the administration "is hoping for a tuition increase or appropriations from the legislature" to keep the college solvent for the year ahead.

N ADDITION to cutting into next semester's funds, spending cutbacks have been enacted, especially in the areas of new equipment purchasing and the maintenance of equipment.

Thirteen less professors are teaching this year in comparison with last year's total. Although this does not represent a large drop in the teaching staff, the cut involves the replacement of many full time professors with adjunct professors who are paid about $4000 less annually.

Gawley claimed that the social sciences and business administration courses were hit the hardest by increases in students, although this is not proportional to number of new class sections offered. Gawley cited freshman English composition courses as being especially overcrowded.

PROBLEMS OF crowding stemmed from fewer students dropping out than expected, more part-time students enrolling and fewer facilities and resources to handle the numbers.

"We will continue to use our available resources to service the academic needs of students," Gawley stated optimistically.

SGA Report

Election DATE SET TO Replace EXEC VP

By Donald Scarinci

The SGA legislature Tuesday passed a bill calling for the special vice-presidential election to be held along with the fall legislative election.

Besides acquiring a new executive vice-president, the election, which will be held on Wed. and Thurs., Sept. 24 and 25, will fill four "freshmen-at-large" seats and "those legislative seats not filled in the Spring elections," according to the bill submitted by Manny C. Menendez, SGA president.

THE SPECIAL election was necessitated by the resignation, last week, of Paul Scaffidi, SGA executive vice-president, who abruptly ended his 12 month term for "financial reasons."

Scaffidi, whose main task is to run the Tuesday legislative meetings, turned over the reigns to Harry Morales, president pro tempore of the legislature, after leading his first and last meeting.

Morales was elected by the legislature on Tuesday to serve as president pro tempore. According to the SGA constitution, the president pro tempore runs the meeting if the executive vice president is unavailable. The position is decided by the legislature at its first meeting in September.

MORALES WILL now act as executive vice-president until the new vice president is elected later this month.

Petitions for the position will be available on Mon., Sept. 15. Campaigning will begin on Wed., Sept. 17.

In emergency legislation, the SGA approved a bill that would provide a privileged parking area to physically handicapped students.

THE BILL, sponsored by Menendez and Chris Confroy, biology representative, provides for the establishment of an investigation and follow through "on the creation of a parking area reserved strictly for these students."

In other matters, the SGA approved the appointments of Ken Malmund as attorney general, Ron Tripoli as vice-president of academic affairs, and Janet Byrne as public relations coordinator.

Also at the meeting, Menendez informed the legislature that the contract for the pharmacy program has not been renewed for the month of September.

MENENDEZ SAID the pharmacy program which provides MSC students with $1.50 per drug cost for any drug purchased at given locations has costed more than its use.

He also said the SGA sponsored program is under legal investigation. Citing the figures, Menendez said the SGA lost $10,000 on the program since it began last February. The decision to continue with the program next month will be voted on by the legislature at a future meeting.

Center Cut, Trips to Continue

By Barbara Ponsi

Due to the current "budget squeeze," the Center for International Education (CIE) has been dissolved and its activities have been absorbed under intra-collegiate programs, according to MSC President David W.D. Dickson.

This adjustment also includes the release of CIE director Joseph Kloza, Dickson said. Kloza could not be reached for comment.

NO DRASTIC changes in international programs will occur, James E. Harris, chairman of intra-collegiate academic programs, assured, including Winter Session European trips and the foreign exchange student program.

"It would be in the best interests of everyone to continue running things as usual," Harris added.

Dickson explained that the expenses cut from CIE came primarily from personnel salaries. "We can save $18 - $19,000 by eliminating Kloza's salary and cutting a percentage of the pay from remaining staff members," Dickson said.

MSC IS operating with $1.7 million less than last year, Dickson

Joseph Kloza

CIE Director Laid Off

said, adding that "we have faint hopes of supplemental appropriation from the state but the chances of that cannot be predicted at this point."

Kloza directed the CIE since 1970, bringing about the increase in the number of foreign students from 14 to 140. In addition, the Winter Session overseas study program has become the largest of its kind in New Jersey, annually sending 200 students and faculty abroad to pursue various courses of study.

Ironically, Kloza was recently appointed to the regional team of the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs, representing New Jersey, New York and Puerto Rico.

IAPC Branches Out over Summer

By Debbie Kaslauskas

Educators from around the United States met this past summer to partake in the nation's first teacher-training workshop involving the Lipman method of teaching philosophy to primary grade pupils.

Dr. Matthew Lipman, director of the Institute for Advancement of Philosophy for Children (IAPC) based at MSC, and Dr. Ann M. Sharp, assistant director said in a New York Times interview (1-12-75), that their program is designed to get children to "think about thinking, not to implant ideas in young minds."

LIPMAN, A professor of philosophy, continued, "The object of philosophical thinking is to allow the child to discover how thought can play upon its subject matter, how reasoning about issues can be satisfied even if it does no more than formulate the basic questions."

Among the people involved in the workshop, which carried nine graduate credits over a six week period, were elementary educators, graduate philosophy students and professors from around the US. With such a diversified group," Lipman said, "valuable experiments and experiences were discussed on teaching children philosophical thinking."

The program is to be taught in the form of a children's novel, "Harry Stottlemeyer's Discovery." The book, as reviewed by the Mensa Research Journal, "is a must reading for anyone who has a genuine interest in understanding preadolescent youngsters per se."

THE JOURNAL continues, "Logic is taught by describing the infectious attempts of a fifth grader, Harry Stottlemeyer, to discover how to think about thinking."

"Although Teaching Children Philosophical Thinking is set up as a course," declared Lipman, "It spills over into the entire curriculum and welds it as a whole."

Lipman, a former professor of philosophy at Columbia University before joining the MSC faculty, began working on philosophy for children in 1968. He has received aid from the National Endowment for Humanities, and the NJ Department of Higher Education.

GRANTS FROM the Schumann Foundation totalling $15,000, enabled the institute to publish an instructional manual for Lipman's fifth and six grade program. The manual, which guides the teacher in instruction of philosophy, contains recreational, creative, moral, affective and cognitive activities in addition to a basic course on formal reasoning.

An additional $5000 from the Schumann Foundation, supported the recent summer workshop, which trained elementary school teachers in the encouragement of philosophical thinking among children.

Lipman has, in the past, lectured on the subject of philosophy for children and has tested his theories in a pilot program in Montclair public schools. The theories were further applied in 1971 at the Morton Street School, Newark, and in Denton, Tex.

TIME MAGAZINE called the experimental class in the Morton Street School "a rigorous introduction to philosophy." The article continued, "It covered syllogistic inferences, universal and particular sentences, logic differences of degree, relationships and styles of thought."

In order to increase public awareness of the importance of philosophy for children, Lipman has organized the "Equality of Opportunity" conference scheduled to take place at Douglass College on Tues., Oct. 28.

The conference will involve 45 panelists on various themes such as children's rights, moral education, and parent-child relationships. The conference has been endorsed by a $6500 grant from the NJ Committee for the Humanities.

Dr. Matthew Lipman
Children Think About Thinking

ANOTHER WORKSHOP is scheduled in January at Douglass. Lipman hopes to instruct more trainees in order to create a "breeder effect" thus influencing educational systems to adopt his program.

The institute is now preparing a curriculum for grades seven and eight, to be completed by September, 1976. It is hoped that a curriculum for kindergarten through grade two and grades three and four will be completed by the following September.

A first-of-its-kind meeting next weekend will bring the heads of all SGA chartered organizations together in an effort to increase communication and promote organizational responsibility among student leaders.

This "summit" of sorts, ultimately intended as an annual event, will take place on Sun., Sept. 21 in Student Center Ballroom A 10 am-3 pm.

PROVIDES INFO,

More importantly than the benefit of the organizations involved will be the chance for interested students thinking of joining or just seeking information about MSC's stable of student groups to attend.

In addition to group representatives, MSC President David W.D. Dickson, Lawton W. Blanton, dean of students, and Thomas Stepnowski, director of student activities (who's in charge of scheduling organizational events), will be there, as will a representative of campus security and an SGA attorney.

CLUB CAUCUS

Scheduling and spending policies will come under discussion, but the day's main purpose is to bring all the organizations together.

Following is a list of all organizations chartered by the SGA:

Class One: Black Student Cooperative Union (BSCU), College Life Union Board (CLUB), Council on International and National Affairs

(CINA), La Campana, Human Relations Lab (HRL), MONTCLARION, Music and Arts Organizations Commission (MAOC), Players, Quarterly, Student Intramural and Leisure Council (SILC), Student Filmmakers Real Movies (SFA), WMSC, and Latin American Student Organization (LASO).

Class Two: Accounting Club, Anthropology Club, American Industrial Arts College Students Association, Distributive Education Club, English Club, French Club, French Honor Society, Geography Club, Jewish Student Union, Math Club, Music Educators National Conference, Music Therapy Club, Newman Community, Phi Mu Alpha (Sinfonia), Pi Omega Pi, Recreation Club, Sigma Alpha Iota, Sigma Delta Pi, Sigma Eta Sigma, Speech and Hearing Club.

Class Three: Alpha Kappa Psi, Aphesteon (Kappa Mu Epsilon) Chi

Alpha Xi, Delta Beta Phi, Delta Theta Psi, Epsilon Pi Tau, German Club, Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship, Kappa Rho Upsilon, Kappa Sigma Rho, MSC Computer Science Club, MSC Conservation Club, Phi Chi Theta, Phi Epsilon Kappa, Phi Lambda Pi, Senate.

It is hoped all organizations chartered by the SGA will send at least one representative to this important conference.

To the Editor,

While honesty and integrity are being taught in the business classes, on the extreme other side of the campus in a building built by and for students, legal rights are being ignored, verbal promises broken and responsible future leaders are being conveniently overlooked.

APO has provided a used book service to the students for many years offering an alternative to the extremely high priced texts at the College Supply Store. Now without due consideration or the honor to abide by a verbal agreement the Faculty Student Co-op in conjunction with the new leader of the Student Center have embarked on an expansion which will have the potential to extinguish APO.

APO being a 95% service fraternity provides many services to the campus which will come to a screeching halt when our used book service is forced to close. I urge every student who likes half priced books, the availability of a blood bank, and other vital services to exert every pressure to insure our continuation. APO intends to maintain its half price rule. Help them. Help yourself.

For over 130 years we've been using the word "quality" in our advertising. Once again, we'd like to tell you what we mean by it.

Our brewery in 1844.

Blue Ribbon quality means the best tasting beer you can get. A quality achieved only by using the finest ingredients and by adhering to the most rigid of brewing standards.

In Milwaukee, the beer capital of the world, Pabst Blue Ribbon continues to be the overwhelming best seller year after year. Blue Ribbon outsells its nearest competitor nearly five to one. That's why we feel we've earned the right to challenge any beer.

So here's the Pabst challenge: Taste and compare the flavor of Blue Ribbon with the beer you're drinking and learn what Pabst quality in beer is all about. But don't take our word for it. Taste our word for it.

Pabst. Since 1844.
The quality has always come through.

'The House of Blue Leaves' Players to Stage Bizarre Drama

By Tom Malcolm

Players' first offering of the 1975-76 theater season at MSC will have elements of the bizarre, according to Players' vice-president Tony Salerno. Both he and business manager Joe Long agreed that "The House of Blue Leaves" is likely to be "one of the most bizarre plays you'll ever see."

Players will open their production of "The House of Blue Leaves" on Wed., Sept. 17 at 8 pm in Memorial Auditorium. On opening night only, freshmen who bring along the special coupon included in their orientation packages will be admitted free to see the kind of excellent theater Players consistently offers its viewers.

THERE WILL also be performances Thurs.-Sat., Sept. 18-20 at 8 pm, with a Friday matinee at 2 pm. General admission is $1.75 with a special rate of 75 cents with SGA ID and $1 for other students and senior citizens.

A look at the plot of the John Guare comedy supports the claims of "bizarre" made by Salerno and Long. The pivotal character in the play is Artie Shaughnessey, a zoo keeper at the Bronx Zoo who hopes to someday write the libretto for a Broadway musical.

Artie shares a run-down lower middle class apartment with his wife, appropriately nicknamed "Bananas," which she is. When not working on his compositions, he tries to get Bananas committed to an insane asylum. He's aided by his girlfriend, Bunny Flingus, who wants Bananas out of the way so she and Artie can get out of New York and find a place in the sun.

ALMOST THE entire action of the play takes place in Artie's apartment on the day in 1965 that Pope Paul VI visited New York City.

Salerno and Long explained that "The House of Blue Leaves" is somewhat unusual in that Artie occasionally stops the action of the play and addresses a few words to the audience. He also treats us to bits and pieces of the pitiful melodies he's composed through the years, but in no sense can the play be considered a musical.

Salerno and Long agreed that the play fits into the genre of black comedy, which they described as drama that "makes you laugh at things that aren't really funny" and cited Artie's efforts to get his wife put away as just one example.

"THE HOUSE of Blue Leaves" is generally played broadly for laughs, and the playing of the Bananas character especially calls for much slapstick and buffoonery. But underneath the somewhat crude laugh-getting devices lies a drama serious in theme and intent. Playwright Guare has some important things to say about people and their relationships with one another, and he makes his points most convincingly in this play.

Players will have the help of three professionals in putting on the production: Robert Alpaugh of New York, director; David Sackeroff, also of New York, set designer; and William Lieberman of Fair Lawn, technical director.

Director Alpaugh, who holds an MFA from the University of North Carolina, has extensive professional credits in repertory and summer stock companies throughout the country.

SET DESIGNER Sackeroff recently designed the off-Broadway production of "Boy Meets Boy," which enjoyed a highly successful off-off-Broadway run. This is not Sackeroff's first design for Players, however. MSC playgoers will remember his truly lovely naturalistic setting for Players production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" last spring.

Sackeroff's set for "The House of Blue Leaves" will involve what producer Salerno called "fragmentary or selected realism." "It's a symbolic kind of set in that only portions of the set will be realistic," Salerno said, "and the set design will enable us to choose what the audience sees in a realistic vein and what it does not."

Some of the walls of the set will at times become transparent, enabling the audience to see through to a collage type background and thus experience what is known as "selected layers of reality."

"THE HOUSE of Blue Leaves" opened off-Broadway on Feb. 11, 1971 and starred Anne Meara, Harold Gould and Frank Converse. It enjoyed successful runs both on and off-Broadway, and won the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for

The cast of the Players production is headed by Chris Mattaliano as Artie, Yvonne Rossetti as Bananas, and Sue Goldberger as Bunny. Also included in the cast are Barry Cassidy, Peter Colletto, Jayne Hague, LouAnn Nelson, Mary Grace Nowak, Don Sheffrin and Sue Speidel. Costumes will be designed by Barbara Brower, and Gene Gebhardt will handle the duties of master carpenter. Maureen O'Rourke is stage manager and Patti Kimmel is her assistant.

Players has issued an invitation to all freshman and transfer speech/theater majors, or anyone interested in Players, to join them for coffee and cake (or maybe wine and cheese) in Life Hall lounge after the Friday evening performance.

Women's Tennis

Spirit May Net Tourney

By Joan Rizzio

Optimistic and spirited are two words that well describe the MSC women's tennis team which will be opening its 1975 season at Seton Hall Tuesday.

Linda Galate will be returning as coach for her second straight season. In her coaching debut she guided the Squaws to an 8-2 record, the first winning season in their history.

According to Galate, the Squaws should enjoy a very successful 1975 season. "I see no reason why we can not match or surpass last year's 8-2 record," Galate commented. "The team was a finely-tuned machine because of the way they all worked together so beautifully."

SHE CONTINUED, "Tennis is not really a team sport; it's an individual sport but there was a team effort last year. Half the battle was achieving that and we succeeded. Everyone was working for the whole team.

"The girls had kind of a team spirit which was nice. If you don't have the ability, it's that spirit that makes you win. It was that added effort that made us good on our overall effort," she said.

Commenting on last season, Galate said that the team's strength was in its doubles. Mary Ellen Mahan, a senior, and her partner Nancy Meyer, a sophomore, posted a record of 8-1 in doubles competition.

They as well as seniors Karen Miller and Clorinda Soracco, who together had an 8-2 record, return this year. In singles, sophomores Lori Imhof, (8-2) and Chris Grassano are both coming off good seasons last year and look like sure starters again.

The Squaws compete against 12 different teams this year as Upsala College and Queens College join the schedule. After their opening match at Seton Hall on Tues., Sept. 16, the Squaws play host to FDU-Teaneck on Tues., Sept. 23, in their home opener.

Sports Sidelines

Admission to home MSC football games, as it is to all home athletic events, is free to MSC students with a valid SGA ID. However, preferred seating in the Student Booster Section between the 40 and 50 yard lines is available on a season basis for a $3 fee. Two free tickets to Parents Night (Fri., Sept. 26) come with the booster tickets.

Advisor Barry Hennis invites all interested in joining the weightlifting club to attend its first meeting on Wed., Sept. 17 at 4 pm in Panzer Gym room five. The weightlifting team, an outgrowth of the club, has captured the national championship two years in a row.

There will be a meeting for all freshmen, sub-varsity and varsity basketball candidates on Tues., Sept. 16 at 4:15 pm in Panzer Gym. Coach Ollie Gelston welcomes all aspiring cagers to attend.

The Student Intramural and Leisure Council (SILC) is still accepting applications for its tennis tournament being held this Saturday and Sunday. Applications can be returned to the SILC office on the fourth floor of the Student Center before noon Friday.

Men's and coed football registrations are out for SILC's fall program and are due in the SILC office on Thurs., Sept. 18 at noon.

Anyone wishing to join the SILC bowling league is urged to register before Fri., Sept. 19. There is a $1 fee per week which will cover the cost of three games.

If you miss Saturday's opening football game against Kean College, you'll be given a second chance to catch all the New Jersey State Athletic Conference action. Every Monday following the game, game films will be shown in the Student Center ballrooms at noon. The free screenings will be narrated by coaches Don MacKay and Clary Anderson.

MSC Nine Does Jersey Bounce

By Al Barton

If the Jersey City Invitational Tournament is any indication, MSC's baseball opponents are in for a long autumn. Alex Tornillo's Indians, who placed fourth at the College Division World Series in the spring, amassed 26 runs and 30 hits in wins over Upsala and Monmouth and waltzed to the crown backed by solid frontline pitching.

Also taking over where he left off in the spring was Indian first-sacker Kevin Donohoe. The 6-foot-4 senior collected six hits in 10 trips to the plate, including a solo home run in the opening game. Donohoe seemed to be in a constant slump during the Indians' 1975 regular season but enjoyed a fine World Series and his hot bat kept sizzling in Jersey City.

Kevin Donohoe
Has Hot Bat

RUSTY PACE and Paul Mirabella provided most of the hurling highlights. Pace, who was backed by 12 hits in MSC's 11-3 win over Monmouth in the final, went eight innings. He whiffed eight Hawks and walked four.

Upsala 101 000 003 - 5 5 6
MSC 041 111 07x - 15 18 5
Two base hits - (U) Buckley; (MSC) Mine 2, Petite, Horn.
Three-base hit - (MSC) Spahn
Home run - (MSC) - Donohoe.
Winning Pitcher - Pace (1-0); Losing Pitcher - Conte (0-1)

Monmouth 001 001 010 - 3 6 3
MSC 310 020 23x - 11 12 4

Three-base hits - (MSC) Scoras, Mirabella.
Winning Pitcher - Mirabella (1-0); Losing Pitcher - Dennis (0-1).

Mirabella, who inherits the top spot in the rotation due to the departure of Rich Waller, was sharp in picking up a 15-5 win in the opener against Upsala. The lefty used his usual assortment of pitches, smoke, more smoke, and fire, to strike out 12 and limit the Vikings to six hits.

The barrage of hits also gave Tornillo a chance to look at two other hurlers, Len Zolto and Steve Wacker. Zolto, who was called up late last season and responded with a 2-0 record, finished up for Mirabella on Saturday while Wacker, a freshman out of Irvington High, pitched the last inning in scoreless fashion against Monmouth.

THE TOURNEY final proved to be a mismatch from the outset. MSC tallied three times in the very first frame and was never headed. Dean Uhlik started things off with a single. After Frank Petite drew the first of his three free passes, peppery John Scoras tripled in two runs. Gerry Casalino followed with an RBI base hit and for all purposes the game was over.

The Tribe stretched it to 6-1 in the fifth on Keith Murray's bases-loaded single then scored three times in the eighth on singles by Casalino and Ed Zangeri.

Donohoe's homer, a tape measure blast, and a pair of doubles by Tom Mine backed Mirabella in the first game and paved the way to that easy win.

But wasn't all that rose. One sombering statistic saw the Indians commit nine errors in the two games. Tornillo however dismissed the problem, contending that the playing field was in poor shape.

"We really have a very solid defense," he pleaded.

Fall Footwork

MONTCLARION/Hank Gola
FANCY FOOTWORK: Ron Boehm, who will be vying for an inside right position on the soccer squad this year, loosened up before the Indians' scrimmage against County College of Morris at Brookdale Park Tuesday. The Tribe opens up its regular season on Wed., Sept. 24 against New Jersey Institute of Technology.

Best Year Ever

Wrestling Recruits Sharp

By Hank Gola

Thought last season's wrestling team accomplishments, like a 15-10 record against top notch competition, a second place finish in the College Division 3 nationals plus one national champ was something? Well, you ain't seen nothing yet.

Coach Larry Sciacchetano didn't take the off season lying down, bringing six state champions into the fold at MSC, one state runnerup and a total of 11 state qualifiers. And the recruits have won a total of 136 individual tourney championships.

"I was at a few national high school tournaments and all I heard was how good we're supposed to be this year," said Sciacchetano who was the 1975 Division 3 coach of the year. "From what I've heard, only Oklahoma and Oklahoma State have had better recruiting seasons than us."

THE TRIBE'S top prospect from among the freshmen is Dom DiGiacchino, brother of the Indians' 150-pounder Greg. DiGiacchino eased to the state schoolboy championship while wrestling for Hanover Park High School last season, then went out and added a host of federation titles to his long list over the summer.

He became the national federation greco champ and placed second nationally in the freestyle. He was also the greco champ and a silver medal winner in freestyle at the Junior Olympics, sponsored by the AAU and was a member of the USA national team that toured Bulgaria, where he impressed highly.

"He has really come a long way if you can believe that. There was just no stopping him over the summer," Sciacchetano bragged.

IN ADDITION to DiGiacchino, 118-pounder George Kacavas is likely to capture a starting spot. Kacavas is a high school All-America and a two-time Massachusetts state champ. He was also a New England champ twice in addition to being a national federation placewinner.

The list doesn't stop there with state champs Keith Steihler (177), Chris Lawson (167), Ken Mallory (134) and Jeff Mase (126) all ready to perform in a Tribe uniform.

"We should be the team to beat at the Division 3 nationals and among the top 10 teams overall in the country. I can't wait for the season to start," Sciacchetano said.

"We'll be playing a lot of young players," Stephens said, "It's a matter of having them mature in their positions."

Offensively, the quarterbacking assignment falls to either junior Mark Cisco or freshman James Conoscenti. The backfield is very young, consisting of freshmen Tony Nicosia, John Mitchell, and sophomore Oliver Gass.

According to Stephens, the defense is better prepared. The line is strong with senior Ed Monoco, sophomore Tony Minor, and freshman Pat Cistoni. Behind them junior Sam DeMaio heads the linebacking crew.

TRENTON STATE — "Youth" seems to be the word most fitting for this year's Trenton State football squad, especially on offense.

"Most of the upperclassmen are on defense," first year coach Carm Diccone remarked, "They'll have to carry us into the season until we get better offensively."

Leading the Lions' defense will be seniors Doug Prefech and Joe Deluise, both tackles. Defensive end Keith Waters adds strength to the line while safety Colonel Kelly heads the secondary.

The young offense finds freshmen

Nate Woodward and Ed Hutton in the backfield along with sophomore fullback Keith Dougherty. The quarterback chores were handed to freshman Bob Cole when first string QB John Anderson broke his ankle. Diccone feels Cole lacks experience but is satisfied with his performance thus far.

"I don't want the statement of youth to mean it will take a while for us to win. We can win immediately," Diccone said.

JERSEY CITY STATE

The name Jersey City State used to strike fear in the hearts of other conference foes but not now. These days they would be lucky to muster a faint chuckle, coming off a horrendous 0-9 campaign.

Second year coach Bill McKeown survived his initial season and is back with a veteran squad of 14 lettermen, including nine starters.

All-NJSCAC defensive end Dave Crist will be back trying to mend a defensive line which gave up 45 points a game a year ago.

On offense sophomore Mike Bassis is back at quarterback and McKeown is hoping that freshman Glenn Fava of Elmwood Park and Kevin Humphries can give him running support.

NOT THIS TIME: MSC quarterback Don Mattucci has a friend at Upsala College as he's brought down for a big loss by a Viking lineman. The Indians won the scrimmage Saturday, but Mattucci sustained a minor injury and may not be ready when the Tribe opens its season against Kean College Saturday night.

Same Old Story in NJSCAC

By Steve Nuiver

There will be a new look to the New Jersey State College Athletic Conference football scene this year but we may just get the same old result. With a trio of first-year coaches ready to make its debut, new innovations may be in the works. But once again, the co-favorites should be Glassboro State and MSC.

The Profs have to fill the shoes of departed quarterback Marty McLaughlin but with the speedy Robbie Reid back, they are still explosive on offense. The defending champs, who broke MSC's lock on the loop title, expect to get challenges from Trenton State and Kean, which made some noise last year. But it seems to be the same sad story for William Paterson and Jersey City State.

So dust off your binoculars and bring out your scorecards. Football, '75 has arrived. Here's a capsule look at each team's chances:

GLASSBORO STATE — "We'll be as strong as last year," coach Dick

Wackar remarked, "whether or not the other teams in the league have improved will determine where we finish."

Last year the Profs took the conference championship and had an overall record of 6-3-1. Wackar feels he has plenty of talent available to replace those who graduated.

Returning on offense is senior halfback Little All-America Robbie Reid, who has gained over 1,000 yards in each of the last two years. The now signal caller will be junior Mike Cawley who has pleased Wackar with his progress so far.

Defensively, Glassboro State will be as powerful as ever, particularly in the secondary and up the middle. Returning are all-conference linebackers senior Jim Rosberg and junior Pete Capblutti along with middle guard senior Norman Tomasello.

KEAN COLLEGE — Coming off a highly successful season last year in which the Squires finished 8-2, first year coach John Allen's most urgent chore will be to patch up an offense that has many gaps left by graduation.

"Our offense was depleted by graduation and the biggest loss to us was quarterback Mike Stern," the coach noted. Bill Dohney will replace Stern and as signal caller will rely heavily on halfback Joe Troise who unofficially led the nation in punt returns last season.

Defensively, Kean has several returning starters led by linebackers Mike Smith and Jim Wilbur and Allen is depending upon the defense to pull the load during the upcoming season when they challenge the more difficult foes.

"We have a lot of defensive starters back and I am hoping that they will come through for us because of the tougher schedule we have this year," the coach stated.

WILLIAM PATERSON — First year head coach Jack Stephens who built Jersey City State into a power enters the season with hopes of reversing last year's 3-7 standing.

Looks Good on Paper

Triple Option to Raze Kean?

By Bob Scherer

Don MacKay has it all figured out. On paper, the x's and o's look great from the snap. Each man on the defense is accounted for and barring a fumble, the Indians' new triple option offense can't miss.

"Theoretically, it should work for a touchdown every time," MacKay beamed.

Well besides setting an all-time scoring record, that feat should be more than enough to turn back Kean College, whom the Tribe is meeting for the first time this Saturday night at Sprague Field at 8 pm. Needless to say, there is a lot riding on the game already.

OF COURSE, it will be the first real proving ground for MSC's new weapon but it will also be a must game if the Indians expect to get back the New Jersey State Athletic Conference title, lost for the first time ever last year to Glassboro State. And then there's the fact that legendary coach Clary Anderson has never dropped an opening game in over 30 years of coaching.

Should the Tribe execute their new offense as well against Kean as they have thus far in scrimmages, it will be a long night for the Squires. The Indians gained 393 yards on the ground when they employed the option offense in a three quarter scrimmage against Upsala Saturday. Included in that figure were TD runs of 65 yards by Jim Gwathney and 35 yards by Walt Roberson. Dennis Gunn also scampered 50 yards on one play that set up a short TD plunge by fullback Bob Gardner.

The triple option, installed primarily by MacKay, the offensive coordinator, needs in his words, "a lot of talented people in order to be effective."

At quarterback for the Indians, Don Mattucci, Rich Katzenstein and Randy Schenauer are all versatile and likely to see much action as the engineers of the attack which features the quarterback as a fourth running back. Mattucci, however, is recovering from an injury and may not be available for the opener.

JOINING ONE of those three in the backfield will be Gardner at fullback, Gwathney as one halfback, and either Gunn or Roberson in the other half-back position. All four are likely to make valuable contributions to an offense that is so optional that opposing defenses are unable to key on any one particular running back.

Although the Indians are hopeful that the option offense will yield a successful rushing attack they do not plan to rely solely upon the run against Kean. The Squires' potentially vulnerable defensive secondary is likely to be tested by both Katzenstein and Schenauer. On the receiving end for MSC will be tight end Ray Schmitt and at split end will be either George Strunck or Nelson Franqui. The running backs may also become recipients of short airials should either signal-caller choose to mix the passing game.

For Kean, the ballcarrier that the Tribe defense is most likely to key on is the veteran speedster Joe Troise. Troise unofficially led the nation in punt returns last year and was a prominent cause of an 8-2 record that Kean enjoyed last season.

However, the Squires lost many offensive stars to graduation, most notably quarterback Mike Shern, and are pinning this year's hopes primarily on a strong defense led by returning linebackers Mike Smith and Jim Wilbur.

The contest Saturday night could well turn out to be a struggle between the Tribe's offense and the Squire's defense. In any case, MSC head coach Clary Anderson expects the game to be a struggle. The coach anticipates, "A helluva tough ball game. I must hope we are more advanced, balanced and stable than they are."

MONTCLARION/Sue Castner

INDIAN PURSUIT: Marc Hansen (27) and Barry Giblin (19) are in the thick of things as they cover a punt downfield for MSC in its scrimmage with Upsala College last Saturday. The Tribe's new triple-option offense rolled up the yardage against the Vikes but it will be put to a stiffer test this Saturday by Kean College at Sprague Field.
